Manufacturing Activity Deteriorated in May

Fifth District manufacturing firms reported deterioration in business conditions in May, according to the most recent survey from the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. The composite manufacturing index fell from -10 in April to -15 in May. Two of its three component indexes—shipments and new orders—declined. The shipments index dropped from -7 in April to -13 in May, while the new orders index fell from -20 to -29. The employment index, however, rose slightly from 0 in April to 5 in May.

Firms remained pessimistic about local business conditions, as the index fell to -27 in May. Furthermore, the expectations index for future local business conditions fell to -16.

Many firms continued to report reductions in orders backlogs and vendor lead time as these indexes remained negative.

The average growth rate of prices paid decreased notably, while the average growth rate of prices received edged down slightly in May. Firms expect both growth rates to moderate over the next 12 months.

Technical Notes:

- Each index equals the percentage of responding firms reporting increase minus the percentage reporting decrease. Data are seasonally adjusted. Results are based on responses from 69-73 firms.
- Expectations refer to the time period six months out from the survey period.
- The manufacturing Index is a gauge of broad activity in the District's manufacturing sector. It is a composite index representing a weighted average of the shipments (33 percent), new orders (40 percent) and employment (27 percent) indexes. All firms surveyed are located within the Fifth Federal Reserve District, which includes the District of Columbia, Maryland, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, and most of West Virginia.
- Current price changes are percentage changes over the last 12 months. Expected price changes are expected changes over the next 12 months.
- Seasonal adjustment factors are recalculated every July and the entire series is revised to better reflect current economic trends.
